11/05/2021 spoke to p young re: review of siemens claim in july 2009- in june or july 2009, I asked p young to check with siemens counsel, larry edmondson, regarding the accts receivable asset the debtor listed in its b'cy petition in hopes the estate could bring money into the estate by obtaining a carve out for collecting said Accts receivables; this is a normal practice for me when i see a large accts rec and this one was 1.4+ million and the debtor listed in its petition that siemens had a lien on (that is why p young reviewed the siemens claim , which at that time was filed as a secured claim; the review was to check to see if siemens was perfected against the debtor's accts receivables); he concluded the review of the claim, contacted edmondson and spoke to him about giving the estate a carve out. As i recall siemens declined to allow us to pursue collection of the accts recs not sure if it ws becasue we asked for a carve out or because they were collecting them, so we did not pursue the matter any further (i have done this in numerous cases and most creditors allowed us to collect the accts rec and get a carve out of a certain percentage for our work)-empl

07/16/2021 p young's analysis of amended MPT POC:

Eva,

I have now had an opportunity to review MPT's claim. I do not find anything objectionable about the claim. In this email, I will address each category of damages and the support for such damages.

1) Post-petition rent of $11,757,946.35. This would be MPT's rejection damages. Pursuant to 502(b)(6), a landlord's rejection damages are capped at the greater of (i) 1 year's rent or (ii) 15% of the remaining amount due under the lease, not to exceed 3 years rent. According to MPT's calculations, 1 year of rent would be $4,963,287.76; 3 years of rent would be $15,287,783.55; the entire lease balance would be $78,386,308.99; and 15% of the entire balance would be $11,757,946.35. Therefore, their claim for post-petition rent is properly calculated under 502(b)(6).

2) Pre-petition rent of $8,246,543.42. This amount just is what it is, and is not capped by 502(b)(6). This is appropriate.

3) Pre-petition penalties of $186,499.94. The lease gives them the right to assess late penalties, so this is appropriate.

4) Pre-petition expenses, costs and fees of $94,830.40. The lease gives them the right to recover these costs. While post-petition expenses and costs would not be allowable, pre-petition costs and expenses are appropriate.

5) Notes of $770,000.00. There were several promissory notes between MPT and Bucks County. Those are separate from the lease and, therefore, the damages are not capped by 502(b)(6). There appear to be balances remaining, so this seems an appropriate damage.

6) Additional development payments of $4,057,883.00. Separate from the lease, there was a funding agreement between the parties. My understanding is that, if Bucks County had been current on its obligations, this would have been amortized. Because they were in default from the beginning, the funding agreement gave them the right to call this immediately due and owing. Therefore, I think this is appropriate.

7) Construction period rent balance remaining of $4,878,231.12. This could really be considered additional pre-petition rent. The lease between the parties required Bucks County to pay some reduced rent while the building was being constructed. If there was no default, the construction period rent was also going to be amortized across the life of the lease. However, because a default occurred pre-petition, this amount was declared due and owing. So this, like the pre-petition rent, is part of MPT's damages.

One more issue....I've been told that MPT may have later sold this property. Under Delaware law, I do not think the tenant is entitled to a reduction for the sale of the property....I think the entire claim is still owing, under state law.

07/09/2021 p young forwarded delaware trustee's stipulations; reviewed and emailed p young it looked good to me; p young made a few comments and emailed them to the delaware trustee; once filed and the order approving them is signed attys will file fee apps -eml

06/24/2021 tcw delaware DSI trustee and counsel re mpt withdrawing claim in dsi delaware case, dsi withdrawing claim in this case, we subrogate claim in delaware case and delware trustee pay duplicate claims in his case and we disallow in this case-eml

06/24/2021 p young will file objections to duplicate claims to get in delaware will pay so they do not get paid twice-eml

06/24/2021 update from p young-As soon as the DE Trustee says they are on board, we need to reach out to MPT and try to resolve their claim amount. Then, once they file the motion to approve the deal, we can file objections to all duplicate claims and file fee apps, so that all of those notice periods are running contemporaneous to the DE motion. If all goes right, we can have fee orders down and claim orders down by the time you get the funds...or very shortly thereafter....so you can start writing checks-empl

08/27/2010 There remain two unresolved preference actions. We should be setting trial dates at a pretrial conference today. I anticipate that we will need to serve some discovery before proceeding to trial. We have a decent settlement offer from one defendant but the other defendant claims insolvency. We could resolve these prior to trial, but I am preparing to go forward. I suspect the judge will set these for trial late in the year. - P. Young.
